I've been married to Tracy for 25 years and we have three teenagers. We also run a beef/hay operation that keeps us on our toes. I enjoy my work, spending time with family and friends and working on equipment, motorcycles, and ATVs in the shop. I have been fortunate in that I grew up in church, for the most part. Through the course of events, my faith didn't move from head knowledge to heart knowledge until my thirties. After coming to realize the difference, I'm very passionate about helping others to get there, too. If we're not making disciples that make disciples, what are we here for?
